For my creative exploration, I thought about possible design aspects I'd like to include in my website. I sketched out different designs that I liked, some are well-known symbols associated with feminism, while some of the other sketches I made combined multiple different aspects that I see commonly used in feminist design. I also included the color palette I used in case I'd like to use it as a future palette for my entire website. I enjoyed researching feminist symbolism and drawing inspiration from it for my website.
